

Martin Hrubisko, M.D., Ph.D. – CURRICULUM VITAE

Born in Bratislava, Slovakia on December 15. 1958

Personal data: married in 1983, two children (son born 1987, daughter born 1990), divorced 1995

Study of medicine: Charles University, Prague, Czech Republic (former Czechoslovakia),

M.D. in 1984

I.st. degree: Internal Medicine in 1987

Specialization: Clinical immunology in 1992

PhD. in 1998 (with work "Clinical importance of tree, grass and weed pollen in Bratislava")

Actual work: Head of Dept. of Clinical Immunology and Allergology in Oncology institute of St. Elisabeth.

Areas of interest: pollen allergy (pollinosis), impact of pollen on human health, importance of individual kinds of pollen, especially tree and weed pollens, allergy to members of Asteraceae family (mugwort, ragweed, chamomile...), allergic rhinoconjunctivitis, allergic and non allergic asthma, treatment of allergic diseases, especially H₁-antihistamines, development of allergy and asthma from infancy to adulthood, secondary immunodeficiency in atopic individual.

Publications: till. nov. 2006 181 original and review articles in Slovak and Czech scientific papers; participation as a co-author of 12 scientific books, text-book and / or school-books (Allergology, Pulmonology), 1 of them in English (published in Italy); first Slovak monograph "Allergology" (2003);

Teaching: Slovak Postgraduate Academy of Medicine (Clinical immunology & Allergy – assistant professor), Faculty of medicine in Comenius University Bratislava (Allergy).

Investigator in many open label and controlled double blind randomized trials.